English for everyday confidence

A practical handbook for a Bangla speaker

Book 1 · Learn, practise, check, repeat

For someone who already knows basic English and wants to speak, listen, read, and write with greater ease.

বাংলা বুঝে শিখুন, ইংরেজিতে ব্যবহার করুন। Learn with Bangla support; build the habit of using English.

This book gives you a structured course, model conversations, independent practice, and answers. Use it together with Book 2, the vocabulary companion. You do not need another textbook to follow this course.

Your goal: communicate clearly, keep a conversation going, understand the main message, ask for clarification, and express your ideas with useful detail.

An honest promise: finishing a book does not automatically produce fluency. The learning happens when you retrieve language, speak aloud, listen, notice mistakes, and try again. This course contains the material for that practice. Listening requires sound: use a device's English read-aloud feature or a partner for the included scripts.

Suggested pace: 12 weeks, 6 study days per week, 40-50 minutes per day. Repeat weeks when necessary. This is a schedule, not a guaranteed time to fluency.

Prepared for your starting point · October 2026

01 · Your starting point

Your message successfully explains your background, your goal, and the kind of learning material you want. You can already combine ideas and give a reason. That is a useful foundation.

A natural version of your request

“As a Bangla speaker, I want to improve my English. I already know the basics and can communicate in English. Please create a comprehensive handbook for me, along with a separate vocabulary guide if needed. Include Bangla meanings and examples that will help me communicate fluently. I would like these books to provide a complete self-study course. You can use this message, which I wrote myself, to estimate my current level.”

What your original wording shows

Your wording	More natural wording	What to learn as bangla language speaker	As a Bangla speaker	Capital letters; a before a singular countable noun
I know all the basic english	I know the basics of English	“The basics” is a useful noun phrase; capitalize languages
all the word meaning	word meanings / meanings of the words	Use a plural when you mean multiple meanings
example usecases	example sentences / examples of how to use them	Choose expressions that fit language learning
I want this handbook only enough	I want this handbook to be enough	want + object + to + verb
on my own	on my own / by myself	Your original expression is already correct

What I can and cannot assess

This short sample suggests that sentence accuracy and natural phrasing deserve attention. It does not test your listening, pronunciation, spontaneous speaking, or reading range. It would be unreliable to assign a firm proficiency level from it. Start with the diagnostic on the next page, then adjust the pace.

Learning priority: build reliable sentences first, connect them into short messages, and practise them until you can produce them without translating every word.

বাংলায় ধারণা: আপনার ভাব বোঝা যাচ্ছে। এখন লক্ষ্য হলো বাক্যের গঠন ঠিক করা এবং স্বাভাবিকভাবে ব্যবহৃত শব্দগুচ্ছ শেখা।

02 · A diagnostic you can repeat

Do this before studying. Do not look at the answers on page 25. Keep your first recording and writing sample for comparison.

A. Sentence control: 10 points

Write the missing word or correct the sentence. Each item is worth one point.

1. She ___ to work by bus every day. (go / goes / going)

2. I ___ dinner when you called. (cooked / was cooking / cook)

3. I have lived here ___ 2022. (for / since / from)

4. He ___ like coffee. (don't / doesn't / isn't)

5. I need ___ information. (an / some / many)

6. Make a question: “You finished the task.”

7. Correct: “I am agree with you.”

8. Correct: “Please explain me the problem.”

9. Complete: “If it rains tomorrow, we ___ stay home.”

10. Join with because: “I left early. I felt sick.”

B. Writing: 10 minutes

Write 100-130 words about your typical day, something that happened last week, and one plan for next month. Include a reason and an example. Do not use a translator. Underline sentences you are unsure about.

C. Speaking: 2 minutes

Record yourself answering: “What do you do, what are you learning, and why does it matter to you?” Then explain a problem you recently solved. If you stop, use “Let me think” and continue.

D. Listening: 3 minutes

Have a partner or device read Script A on page 20 while you keep the text hidden. Listen twice. Write the place, time, purpose, and action required. Check against the script.

Use the result to choose your pace

Sentence score 0-5: spend extra time on pages 5-11. Score 6-8: follow the full course. Score 9-10: move faster through familiar grammar, but still complete the speaking tasks. These are course-routing guidelines, not a standardized proficiency test.

For speaking and writing, use the rubric on page 29. A strong grammar score alone does not establish fluency.

03 · How to study so that English becomes usable

Your daily session: 45 minutes

Time	Action	What you produce
5 minutes	Recall yesterday's language without looking	Five sentences aloud
10 minutes	Study one small section	A short explanation in your own words
10 minutes	Learn five entries from Book 2	Five personally true example sentences
10 minutes	Listen to or read aloud a script; retell it	A recording or spoken summary
10 minutes	Complete an exercise or conversation task	Answers and one corrected attempt

On a busy day: recall three phrases, speak for one minute, and correct one sentence. Ten focused minutes keep the habit alive.

The five-step practice loop

1. Understand: read the meaning and notice the sentence pattern.
2. Retrieve: cover the example and produce it from the Bangla meaning or situation.
3. Personalize: replace the people, place, time, or reason with your own information.
4. Use: put the phrase in a short conversation, voice note, or message.
5. Review: revisit it tomorrow, after 3 days, after 7 days, and after 14 days. Review sooner if you forget.

This review schedule is a practical starting point. Adjust it to what you actually remember.

Keep a small error log

Date	My sentence	Better version	New example
Monday	He go yesterday.	He went yesterday.	I went to the market yesterday.
Tuesday	I am agree.	I agree.	I agree with your suggestion.

Record recurring mistakes, not every small imperfection. Choose one target for the next recording. When checking your work, first ask “Is the meaning clear?” Then check time, verb form, articles, and natural word combinations.

Use Bangla as a bridge

At first, a Bangla meaning helps you understand. Then practise the entire English phrase: “depend on,” “make a decision,” “Could you clarify…?” Gradually respond to the situation directly. Avoid memorizing English sentences only through Bangla-script pronunciation; it cannot represent every English sound reliably.

04 · Your 12-week route

Study six days each week. On days 1-4 learn and practise; on day 5 combine the material; on day 6 record a performance and review. Use day 7 for rest or light review.

Week	Main book	Vocabulary themes	Weekly result
1	Pages 1-6: baseline and sentence building	1-2	Introduce yourself for 60 seconds
2	Pages 7-8: time and questions	3-4	Describe yesterday and tomorrow
3	Pages 9-10: noun phrases and prepositions	5-6	Explain your routine and arrange a meeting
4	Pages 11-12: requests and connected ideas	7-8	Give an opinion with two reasons
5	Pages 13-14: conversation and pronunciation	9-10	Keep a three-minute conversation going
6	Pages 15-16: listening and storytelling	11-12	Retell a story with a clear sequence
7	Pages 17-18: everyday and workplace English	13-14	Solve a practical problem politely
8	Pages 19-20: writing and listening scripts	15-16	Write a clear request and summarize audio
9	Pages 21-22: reading and grammar practice	17-18	Summarize a passage without copying
10	Pages 23-24: translation and role-play	19-20	Handle a conversation with a complication
11	Pages 27-28: verbs and extended grammar	Review weak themes	Tell a past story and discuss alternatives
12	Pages 29-30: final assessment and next cycle	Review all themes	Repeat your baseline tasks and compare

Vocabulary pace

Book 2 contains 240 target words and expressions in 20 themes. Learn five per day on days 1-4, then four on day 5. That completes two themes per week for ten weeks. On day 6, test all 24 in context. Weeks 11-12 focus on retrieval and use.

Move on when you can use the material

Before starting the next week, try to perform its task without reading. If you cannot finish it, repeat the hardest parts. You do not need perfect grammar to progress, but you should understand what you are saying.

Optional partner: take turns as customer and assistant, colleague and colleague, or interviewer and applicant. If studying alone, record both roles with pauses between turns.

05 · Build a complete sentence

English usually puts the verb before the object

Bangla often follows subject + object + verb: আমি চা খাই। English usually follows subject + verb + object: “I drink tea.” Translate the meaning, then build the English order.

Pattern	Example	Bangla meaning
Subject + verb	The baby sleeps.	বাচ্চাটি ঘুমায়।
Subject + verb + object	I need help.	আমার সাহায্য দরকার।
Subject + be + description	I am ready.	আমি প্রস্তুত।
Subject + be + place	The keys are on the table.	চাবিগুলো টেবিলের ওপর আছে।
There is / are + noun	There is a problem.	একটি সমস্যা আছে।
It + be + description	It is difficult to decide.	সিদ্ধান্ত নেওয়া কঠিন।

English normally needs a subject. Say “It is raining,” not “Is raining.” Use it for weather or a situation; use there is/are to introduce something that exists.

Be is a verb; do not add it everywhere

“I am tired” describes a state with an adjective. “I work here” uses the action verb work. “I am working” uses be + -ing for an activity in progress. “I am agree” is incorrect because agree already functions as a verb: “I agree.”

Expand a short sentence

“I study.” → “I study English.” → “I study English at home.” → “I study English at home every evening because I want to communicate more confidently.”

Add information in manageable pieces: who, what, where, when, why. Do not force every detail into one long sentence.

Pronouns you need to control

I → me → my; you → you → your; he → him → his; she → her → her; it → it → its; we → us → our; they → them → their.

“She helped me.” “This is my notebook.” “The notebook is mine.” Possessive pronouns: mine, yours, his, hers, ours, theirs. “It's” means “it is” or “it has”; “its” shows possession.

Try it: translate “আমি প্রতিদিন বাসায় ইংরেজি অনুশীলন করি।” Then add a reason. Say five true sentences using five different patterns above. Model: “I practise English at home every day because I want to speak more clearly.”

06 · Talk about habits and what is happening

Present simple: habits, facts, and regular situations

“I work in Dhaka.” “She works from home.” “We usually eat at eight.” With he/she/it, usually add -s or -es: works, watches, goes. Have becomes has.

Negative: “I don't work on Fridays.” “She doesn't work on Fridays.” After doesn't, use the base verb: doesn't work, not doesn't works.

Question: “Do you work here?” “Does he speak English?” Be behaves differently: “Are you ready?” “She isn't ready.” Do not say “Do you are ready?”

Present continuous: now or a temporary situation

Use am/is/are + verb-ing: “I am studying now.” “She is staying with her sister this week.” Negative: “We aren't waiting.” Question: “Are you listening?”

Compare: “I work at a bank” describes my usual job. “I'm working from home today” describes today's arrangement.

Verbs such as know, need, understand, and believe are usually simple when they express a state: “I understand,” not “I am understanding.” Some verbs change meaning: “I think it's useful” is an opinion; “I'm thinking about it” is a mental activity.

Frequency words

Always, usually, often, sometimes, rarely, never. They usually go before the main verb but after be: “I often walk.” “She is usually early.” “Sometimes I cook” is also natural.

Conversation

A: What do you do?

B: I work in customer support. What about you?

A: I'm a student, and I'm looking for a part-time job.

B: What kind of work are you looking for?

A: Something where I can practise English.

Practise

1. She ___ (study) every evening.

2. We ___ (prepare) dinner right now.

3. Correct: “He doesn't knows the answer.”

4. Make a question: “You are waiting for someone.”

5. Say three habits and three things happening this week.

Check: 1 studies; 2 are preparing; 3 He doesn't know the answer; 4 Are you waiting for someone? For 5, use the simple for habits and continuous for temporary activities.

07 · Tell people when things happen

Meaning	Form	Example
Finished past event	past simple	I called her yesterday.
Activity in progress in the past	was/were + -ing	I was cooking when she called.
Past connected to now	have/has + past participle	I have lost my keys. I can't get in.
A plan or intention	am/is/are going to + verb	I'm going to study tonight.
An arranged future event	present continuous + future time	I'm meeting Sara at six tomorrow.
A decision now or a promise	will + base verb	I'll call you back.

Past simple

Regular verbs often end in -ed: worked, needed. Common verbs are irregular: went, saw, bought. Negative: “I didn't go.” Question: “Did you go?” After did/didn't, use the base form. With be: “I was busy,” “Were you busy?”

Present perfect: use it for a connection, not just “past”

“I have finished the report” emphasizes that it is ready now. “I finished it yesterday” names a finished past time. Avoid “I have finished it yesterday.”

“I have lived here for three years” usually means I still live here. For = duration; since = starting point. “Have you ever visited Sylhet?” asks about experience. “I've never been there.”

Already: “I've already sent it.” Yet: “Have you sent it yet?” / “I haven't sent it yet.” Just: “I've just arrived.” Past simple is also common for some recent events, especially in American English.

Past continuous gives the background

“I was walking home when it started to rain.” The walking was in progress; the rain began during it. “When” does not automatically require a particular tense: choose the form that expresses your meaning.

Practise with one topic

Say what you usually do, what you are doing now, what you did yesterday, what you have done so far this week, and what you are going to do tomorrow. Topic: learning, work, cooking, or exercise.

Correction drill: “I didn't went” → “I didn't go.” “I am living here since 2022” → “I have lived here since 2022” or “I have been living here since 2022.”

08 · Ask questions and handle negatives

Choose the right helper

Sentence	Question	Negative
You are busy.	Are you busy?	You aren't busy.
She works here.	Does she work here?	She doesn't work here.
They arrived.	Did they arrive?	They didn't arrive.
He can help.	Can he help?	He can't help.
You have finished.	Have you finished?	You haven't finished.

Question-word pattern: question word + helper + subject + main verb. “Where do you live?” “Why did she leave?” “When will they arrive?”

Subject questions are different: “Who called you?” asks who performed the action. “Who did you call?” asks about the person receiving it.

Ask the question you mean

What = thing/information. Which = choice from a set. Who = person. Whose = ownership. Where = place. When = time. Why = reason. How = method/condition.

“How long does it take?” asks about duration. “How often do you go?” asks about frequency. “How far is it?” asks about distance. “How much is it?” asks about price. “What is she like?” asks about character; “What does she look like?” asks about appearance.

Polite embedded questions

Direct: “Where is the station?” Polite: “Could you tell me where the station is?” In the embedded part, use statement order. Direct: “When does it start?” Polite: “Do you know when it starts?”

For a yes/no question, use if or whether: “Do you know if the shop is open?”

Short answers and follow-ups

“Do you like it?” → “Yes, I do. I especially like the design.” “Can you come?” → “No, I can't, but I can join online.” Add a useful detail instead of stopping at yes or no.

Practice: ask about someone's job, commute, weekend, reason for learning, and next plan. For every answer, ask one related follow-up: “How did you get started?” “What happened next?” “Would you recommend it?”

Common repair: “Why you are late?” → “Why are you late?” “Where you went?” → “Where did you go?”

09 · Articles, quantity, and comparison

A/an, the, or no article?

Use a/an with one nonspecific singular countable noun: “I need a pen.” Choose by sound: an hour, a university. Use the when the listener can identify the thing: “I bought a pen. The pen is blue.”

Use no article for general plural or uncountable nouns: “Books are useful.” “Water is essential.” Compare “The water in this bottle is cold” because this water is specific.

A singular countable noun normally needs something before it: a book, the book, my book, this book. Say “I am a student,” not “I am student.”

Countable and uncountable

Countable: a question, two questions, many questions, a few questions. Uncountable in their usual general senses: information, advice, furniture, equipment, homework, progress. Say “some advice,” “a piece of advice,” “some information.”

Many + plural countable: “How many people?” Much + uncountable: “How much time?” A lot of works with both. Some is common in statements and offers; any is common in questions and negatives: “Would you like some tea?” “Do you have any questions?”

A few = some, often enough; few = not many, often less than wanted. A little = some amount; little = not much. “I have a little time” offers a possibility; “I have little time” emphasizes a shortage.

Compare options

Cheap → cheaper → cheapest. Useful → more useful → most useful. Good → better → best. Bad → worse → worst. “This route is faster than that one.” “This is the most useful option.”

“As … as”: “This one is as good as that one.” Too means more than suitable: “It's too expensive for me.” Enough means sufficient: “It's clear enough.” “We have enough time.”

Practise

1. I need ___ advice. (an / some)

2. She is ___ engineer. (a / an)

3. This is ___ book you recommended. (a / the)

4. We don't have ___ chairs. (enough / much)

5. Make a comparison between two places you know.

Check: 1 some; 2 an; 3 the; 4 enough. Model for 5: “Dhaka is busier than my hometown.”

10 · Prepositions and natural combinations

Prepositions often belong to a whole phrase. Learn “interested in learning,” not just “interested = আগ্রহী.” Bangla and English do not map word for word.

Use	Common pattern	Example
Clock time	at	Let's meet at six.
Day/date	on	The meeting is on Monday.
Month/year	in	I started in January / in 2024.
A point/location	at	I'll wait at the entrance.
An enclosed area	in	The keys are in my bag.
A surface	on	Your phone is on the table.
A destination	to	I'm going to the office.
A source	from	I received a message from Rafi.
A deadline	by	Please send it by Friday.
Continuing to a time	until	I'll be here until Friday.

Say “today,” “tomorrow,” “yesterday,” “next week,” and “last Monday” without at/on/in in these ordinary time expressions. “I'll see you next week.”

Learn these as complete pieces

Listen to someone; wait for someone; depend on something; belong to someone; interested in something; good at something; worried about something; responsible for something; different from something; similar to something.

“Arrive at the station,” but “arrive in Dhaka.” “Get home” and “go home,” without to. “On the bus,” “on the train,” but “in a car.” These are useful starting patterns; context can create other uses.

Verb combinations worth memorizing

Make a decision, make a mistake, make progress; do homework, do the dishes, do your best; take a break, take notes, take a bus; have a conversation, have a problem, have lunch.

“Discuss the problem,” not “discuss about the problem.” “Explain the problem to me,” not “explain me the problem.” “Tell me the answer,” but “say something to me.”

Practice: describe your next appointment using at, on, in, by, and until. Then give advice using good at, interested in, and responsible for.

Model: “The appointment is at ten on Tuesday. It's in Dhaka. I need to arrive by 9:45. I'll probably stay until eleven.”

11 · Requests, permission, advice, and conditions

Match the expression to the relationship

“Send me the file” is direct and may fit a clear instruction. “Could you send me the file, please?” is a useful polite request. “Could you possibly…” is more tentative. More words are not always more polite; clear context and a reasonable tone matter.

Purpose	Pattern	Example
Ability	can + verb	I can help you.
Permission	Can/Could I…?	Could I use your phone?
Request	Could/Would you…?	Could you repeat that?
Advice	should + verb	You should check the address.
Requirement	have to / must + verb	I have to leave by six.
Possibility	might / may / could + verb	It might rain later.
Preference	would like / would rather	I'd like some tea. I'd rather stay home.

After can, could, should, must, might, and will, use the base verb: “She can come,” not “can comes” or “can to come.” Would like takes to before a following verb: “I'd like to join.”

Important difference: “You mustn't go” = going is prohibited. “You don't have to go” = going is not necessary. “You should go” = advice.

Say no while keeping the conversation open

“I'm sorry, I can't make it tonight. Would tomorrow work?” “I can help with the first part, but I won't be able to finish the whole thing today.” Avoid promising something you cannot do.

Useful conditionals

General result: “If you heat ice, it melts.” Real future possibility: “If I finish early, I'll call you.” Usually do not put will in the if-clause for this pattern.

Imagined situation: “If I had more time, I would travel more.” This expresses a hypothetical situation, not necessarily past time. Advice: “If I were you, I'd ask for clarification.”

Practice: request help, refuse an invitation, give advice, and explain a condition. Use one reason in each response. Model: “Could you check this sentence? I'm not sure about the verb.”

12 · Connect your ideas without making them tangled

Give a clear message in four parts

Point → reason → example → next step.

“I prefer studying in the morning. I can concentrate better then. For example, I usually remember new phrases more easily before work. So I'm going to study for twenty minutes after breakfast.”

Relationship	Connectors	Example
Addition	and, also, in addition	It's affordable, and it's easy to use.
Reason	because, since	I stayed home because I was tired.
Result	so, therefore	I was tired, so I stayed home.
Contrast	but, although, however	Although it was raining, we went out.
Example	for example, such as	Try a small task, such as ordering tea.
Sequence	first, then, after that, finally	First, open the app. Then sign in.

For a straightforward sentence, choose “Because I was tired, I stayed home” or “I was tired, so I stayed home.” Avoid doubling because + so in the same construction. Similarly: “Although it was expensive, I bought it,” not “Although…, but…”.

However usually joins separate statements: “The room is small. However, it is comfortable.” In everyday speech, but is often simpler.

Add detail with relative clauses

“The person who called is my colleague.” “The book that I bought is useful.” “This is the place where we met.” Who describes people; that/which can describe things. For identifying clauses, that is useful for things: “The bus that goes to the airport stops here.”

Keep your listener oriented

“Here's the main issue.” “There are two reasons.” “Let me give you an example.” “What I mean is…” “To sum up…” Use these when they help; do not insert them into every sentence.

Practise

Explain a preference using because. Describe a problem using but. Give instructions using first, then, finally. Describe someone using who.

Model: “I prefer the earlier bus because it's less crowded. It takes a little longer, but I can usually get a seat. My colleague, who lives nearby, takes the same bus.”

13 · Keep a conversation moving

A simple rhythm: answer, add, ask

A: Do you enjoy cooking?

B: Yes, I do. I usually cook on weekends. What do you like to make?

A: Mostly simple meals. I tried making soup yesterday.

B: How did it turn out?

Your answer gives information; the extra detail gives the other person something to respond to; the question returns the turn. Avoid making every exchange an interview: share your own reactions too.

Start and end naturally

Start: “Hi, how's your day going?” “How do you know the host?” “Is this your first time here?” For someone you know: “How did your interview go?”

End: “It was good talking to you.” “I need to get back to work, but let's catch up soon.” “Thanks for your help. Have a good day.” Personal questions about age, income, or marriage may feel intrusive in some settings; follow the other person's comfort and the situation.

Repair misunderstandings

If you did not hear: “Sorry, could you say that again?” If you heard but did not understand: “What does ‘reschedule’ mean here?” If details matter: “Did you say fifteen or fifty?” To confirm: “So we're meeting at four, right?”

If you used the wrong word: “Sorry, I meant Thursday, not Tuesday.” If you need time: “Let me think for a moment.” If you do not know a word: describe its purpose, appearance, or location. “It's the thing you use to charge your phone.”

Disagree without attacking

“I see your point, but I think…” “That could work. My concern is…” “I agree with the first part. I'm less sure about…” Give a reason or propose an alternative.

Practise for three minutes

Topic: the best way to learn a skill. Include one opening, two follow-up questions, one example, one polite disagreement, one clarification, and one closing. Replay your recording. Did you respond to what was said, or only wait to say your planned sentences?

বাংলায় মনে রাখুন: না বুঝলে প্রশ্ন করা কথোপকথনেরই অংশ। দ্রুত কথা বলার চেয়ে অর্থ পরিষ্কার রাখা বেশি জরুরি।

14 · Pronunciation for clear communication

Your aim is intelligibility: people understand you without unnecessary effort. You do not need to erase your Bangla accent. Different Bangla speakers have different habits, so practise the sounds that actually cause difficulty for you.

Check these sound contrasts

Contrast	Examples	How to practise
/v/ and /w/	vine / wine; vest / west	For v, upper teeth touch lower lip with voice. For w, round the lips without tooth-lip contact.
/ɪ/ and /iː/	ship / sheep; live / leave	Listen for vowel quality as well as length; imitate a clear model.
/θ/ and /ð/	thin / then; teeth / breathe	Let air pass with tongue near or lightly between the teeth; add voice for /ð/.
Final consonants	back / bag; rice / rise	Keep the ending audible enough to distinguish the word.

The symbols are sound labels, not a complete pronunciation course. Listen to the example words using English read-aloud or a clear speaker; then record yourself. A text-only description cannot replace hearing the contrast.

Keep consonant groups together

Practise “school,” “street,” “next,” and “asked” slowly. Avoid adding an extra vowel if it changes the word: school, not “is-kool.” Build backward: ask → asked; next → next day. Natural speech may simplify some groups, but clarity comes first.

Endings carry meaning

-ed can sound like /t/ in worked, /d/ in played, or /ɪd/ in wanted. Add an extra syllable after /t/ or /d/: wanted, needed. Plural/third-person -s can sound like /s/ in books, /z/ in bags, or /ɪz/ in buses.

Stress and thought groups

Say im-POR-tant, de-CIDE, de-CI-sion, com-MU-ni-cate. Capital letters mark the stressed syllable, not spelling. In a sentence, emphasize the message words: “I NEED the FILE by FRIDAY.”

Read in groups: “After work / I'm meeting a friend / near the station.” Pause between ideas. Compare “I wanted the BLUE one” with “I wanted the blue ONE”: stress changes the focus.

Daily drill: listen to two lines, mark pauses, repeat slowly, record, compare, and say them again at a comfortable pace. Do not race the recording.

15 · Train your listening with the included scripts

Use the four scripts on page 20. Ask a partner to read them, or use a device's English text-to-speech/read-aloud feature. Select an English voice. Synthetic speech is useful for practice but does not represent every real accent or conversational style.

A listening cycle

1. Hide the text. Listen once for the situation and main point.
2. Listen again for names, times, numbers, reasons, and required actions.
3. Say what you understood before opening the transcript.
4. Read the transcript and locate the parts you missed.
5. Listen while reading, then listen again without reading.
6. Retell the message in your own words.

Do not try to translate every word while listening. Missing one word does not mean losing the entire message. Listen for stressed information and the speaker's purpose.

Dictation and shadowing

Dictation: play one short sentence, pause, and write what you heard. Compare it with the transcript. Mark missing endings or short words such as a, the, to, and have.

Shadowing: after understanding the meaning, repeat a short section just after the speaker. Start with one sentence. Copy pauses and emphasis. Then stop the audio and say the same idea naturally in your own words.

Contractions you need to recognize

I'm = I am; you're = you are; don't = do not; can't = cannot; I'll = I will; we've = we have. She's can mean she is or she has: “She's tired”; “She's finished.” I'd can mean I would or I had: “I'd like some tea”; “I'd already left.” The following words help you decide.

Informal speech may reduce “going to” to a sound like “gonna” and “want to” to “wanna.” Learn to recognize these; standard spelling is the safest choice for ordinary writing.

Track understanding

For each script, record: main point correct? key details correct? action correct? Do not judge success only by the number of individual words you recognize.

Transfer task: after practising a script, change its time, place, and reason. Have a partner read the new version, or listen to it later when you no longer remember the details.

16 · Tell stories and explain experiences

A useful story structure

Situation → problem → action → result → reflection.

“Last Saturday, I went to visit a friend in another part of the city. While I was waiting for the bus, I realized that I had left my wallet at home. I called my brother, and he brought it to me. I arrived thirty minutes late, but my friend was understanding. Since then, I've checked my bag before leaving home.”

Notice the job of each form: went gives the main event; was waiting gives the background; had left places one past event before another; have checked connects the lesson to now.

Make it easier to follow

Set the time: yesterday, last month, a few years ago. Name the people before using he, she, or they repeatedly. Use then, after that, eventually, and in the end where they clarify the sequence. Include enough detail to explain the problem; remove details that distract.

“Eventually” means after some time or difficulty. “Finally” often marks the last step or relief after waiting. “In the end” introduces the final outcome.

Expand an answer without memorizing a speech

Question: “How was your weekend?”

Short: “It was good.”

Expanded: “It was relaxing. I visited my cousin on Saturday, and we cooked dinner together. I needed a break after a busy week.”

Question: “Tell me about a challenge.”

Response: “I had to finish a task with very little time. I divided it into smaller steps and asked a colleague to check the important parts. We finished on time, and I learned to ask for help earlier.”

Three speaking tasks

1. Tell a one-minute story about a small mistake. Include what happened and what you learned.

2. Tell it again in thirty seconds. Keep the main events.

3. Tell it a third time and answer: “Why did that happen?” “How did you feel?” “What would you do differently?”

Record the first and third versions. Compare organization and clarity, not just speed. Reusing the same story helps you focus on language rather than inventing new content every time.

17 · Everyday conversation: solve the situation

At a shop

Customer: I'm looking for a phone charger. Does this work with this model?

Assistant: Yes, it does. Would you like to try it?

Customer: Yes, please. How much is it?

Assistant: It's eight hundred taka.

Customer: Thanks. Could I have a receipt as well?

Complication: it does not work after purchase. “I bought this yesterday, but it isn't working. Could you check it? I'd like a replacement if possible.” Describe the problem before proposing a solution.

Making an appointment

A: I'd like to make an appointment for Thursday.

B: We have a slot at three. Does that work for you?

A: I have another meeting then. Is anything available after four?

B: We can offer you 4:30.

A: That works. Could you confirm the address, please?

Complication: “I'm sorry, something has come up. Could we reschedule for next week?” Give a new option when possible.

Asking for directions

A: Excuse me, how do I get to the station?

B: Go straight ahead, then turn left at the traffic lights.

A: Is it within walking distance?

B: Yes, about ten minutes on foot.

A: So I turn left at the lights, right? Thank you.

Inviting and responding

“Would you like to have lunch on Friday?” → “I'd love to. What time?”

“I can't this Friday, but I'm free on Saturday. Would that work?”

“Thanks for inviting me. I'm not sure yet. Can I let you know tomorrow?”

Practice method

Read one dialogue aloud. Close the book. Repeat the situation with a different product, day, location, or price. On the third attempt, add a complication: the item is unavailable, the time changes, or you misunderstand a direction.

Success means: you stated your need, understood or checked the response, and agreed on a next step. It does not require using the exact model wording.

18 · Workplace and online communication

Give a useful update

Use completed → current → blocked → next.

“I've finished the first draft. I'm checking the examples now. I'm waiting for confirmation about the deadline. Once I have that, I'll send the final version.”

If a deadline is at risk: “I may need an extra day because two details are still missing. I can send the completed sections today. Would tomorrow afternoon work for the final version?” State the impact and propose a realistic option.

Participate in a meeting

Enter: “Could I add something?” Clarify: “When you say ‘ready,’ do you mean ready for review or ready to publish?” Check responsibility: “Who will handle the next step?” Confirm: “So I'll update the document, and you'll review it by Thursday.”

Online: “Your audio is breaking up.” “I think you're on mute.” “Could you share your screen?” “I lost connection for a moment. Could you repeat the last point?”

Ask for help with context

Vague: “It doesn't work.”

Useful: “I'm trying to sign in, but I get an error after entering my password. I've already tried resetting it. Could you help me check what to do next?”

Pattern: goal + problem + what you tried + specific request.

Receive feedback

“Thanks for pointing that out.” “Could you show me an example?” “Let me check that I've understood.” “I'll revise that section and send it again.” You can disagree respectfully: “I understand the concern. My reason for doing it this way was… Could we compare both options?”

Interview answer framework

Present situation → relevant experience → fit for the role. “I work in customer support. In my current role, I explain solutions and follow up on unresolved issues. I'm interested in this position because I enjoy helping people and want to develop my communication skills.” Use true details; do not memorize claims that do not fit you.

Practice: give a 45-second update, ask one clarification question, and write a three-line follow-up recording the decision, owner, and deadline.

19 · Write clear messages and emails

Build a message around the reader's next action

Purpose → necessary context → request/action → time → polite close.

Subject: Request to move Thursday's meeting

Hi Sara,

Could we move our meeting from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Thursday? I have another appointment in the morning. If 2 p.m. doesn't work, I'm also available after 3:30.

Please let me know which time suits you.

Thanks,

Rafi

Three reusable messages

Request: “Hi Nila, could you send me the updated file by 4 p.m. today? I need it for tomorrow's meeting. Thanks.”

Apology and repair: “I'm sorry I sent the wrong attachment. Please use the corrected file attached to this message. Thank you for your patience.”

Follow-up: “Hi Arif, I'm following up on my message about the appointment. Could you confirm whether Friday at three is available? Thanks.”

Choose a suitable tone

A friend: “Can you send me the photo?” A colleague: “Could you send me the updated version?” An unfamiliar recipient: “Hello, I'd like to ask about…” “Dear…” is appropriate for some formal letters; it is not necessary for every chat message.

Avoid unclear references such as “Please do the needful” when you can name the action: “Please review the attached form and confirm the address.” Common regional expressions can be understandable; this course prioritizes wording that travels easily across settings.

Edit in four passes

1. Meaning: is the purpose clear in the first sentence?

2. Action: does the reader know what to do and by when?

3. Grammar: check verbs, articles, plurals, and pronouns.

4. Mechanics: capitalize I, names, days, and English; add punctuation and paragraphs.

Do not join complete sentences with only a comma: “I was late, the bus broke down.” Write “I was late because the bus broke down” or use two sentences.

Practice: write a rescheduling request, an apology for a delay, and a short progress update. Keep each under 80 words. Compare with the models on page 26.

20 · Four listening scripts

Have these read aloud without looking. Questions and answers are below each script; cover them during the first listening.

Script A · A changed arrangement

“Hi Rafi, it's Nila. Our meeting tomorrow has moved from the office to the café beside the station. Please arrive at half past three, not three o'clock. Bring your notebook, but you don't need to bring your laptop. Send me a message if you're going to be late.”

Questions: Where is the meeting? What time? What should Rafi bring? What should he do if late?

Answers: The café beside the station; 3:30; his notebook; send Nila a message. The purpose is to communicate a changed arrangement.

Script B · A delivery problem

“I ordered a blue bag on Monday, but a black one arrived this morning. The size is correct, and the bag isn't damaged. I'd like to exchange it for the blue version. I still have the receipt. Could you tell me how to arrange the exchange?”

Questions: What is wrong? What is not wrong? What solution does the speaker want?

Answers: The colour; the size is correct and it is not damaged; an exchange for the blue version.

Script C · A work update

“I've finished the introduction and checked the figures. I haven't added the final chart yet because I'm waiting for the latest numbers. If they arrive before lunch, I'll send the complete report by four. Otherwise, I'll send the finished sections today and the chart tomorrow.”

Questions: What is complete? What is missing? What determines the next step?

Answers: Introduction and checking the figures; the final chart; whether the latest numbers arrive before lunch. Four is a conditional target, not an unconditional promise.

Script D · A small misunderstanding

A: Let's meet on Tuesday the fifteenth.

B: Sorry, did you say the fiftieth?

A: The fifteenth: one-five. Tuesday, at nine fifteen.

B: Got it. Nine fifteen, not nine fifty.

A: Exactly. I'll send you the location tonight.

Questions: Which date? Which time? What will be sent?

Answers: Tuesday the fifteenth; 9:15; the location. Practise number confirmation by changing fifteen/fifty to thirteen/thirty or fourteen/forty. No particular month or year is implied here.

21 · Read for meaning, then summarize

Reading passage · A manageable habit

Mina wanted to improve her English, but she kept changing her study plan. One week, she memorized a long list of words. The next week, she watched difficult videos and understood very little. She felt busy, but she rarely used the same language twice.

She decided to make her routine smaller. Each morning, she chose five useful expressions and wrote a true sentence with each one. On the bus, she tried to remember the expressions without looking. In the evening, she recorded a one-minute message about her day.

At first, she stopped frequently. She knew what she wanted to say in Bangla, but she could not always find the English words. Instead of restarting the recording, she described the missing word or used a simpler sentence. She checked two mistakes after each recording and tried again.

After several weeks, some expressions came to her more easily. She still made mistakes, and unfamiliar conversations were difficult. However, she could explain her routine and ask follow-up questions with less preparation. She realized that progress did not always mean learning something new. Sometimes it meant using familiar language more confidently.

Questions

1. Why did Mina's original routine give her little repeated practice?
2. What did she do in the morning, on the bus, and in the evening?
3. What did she do when she could not remember a word?
4. Does the passage claim she became fluent? Give evidence.
5. In “some expressions came to her more easily,” does came describe physical movement?
6. Summarize the passage in three sentences without copying whole sentences.

Read actively

First read: identify the main idea. Second read: underline the action and the reason in each paragraph. Third read: notice useful phrases such as “without looking,” “instead of,” and “with less preparation.”

Guess an unknown meaning from context before checking Book 2. It is fine to leave a nonessential word unresolved on the first reading. Do not interrupt every sentence to translate it.

Speaking transfer: explain one part of Mina's routine that you could use, one part you would change, and why. Answers and a model summary are on page 26.

22 · Practice set: sentence control

Complete these without checking earlier pages. After checking page 25, explain each correction aloud and create one new example.

A. Complete the sentences

1. My brother ___ (work) in Chattogram.
2. I ___ (wait) for the bus right now.
3. We ___ (meet) them last Friday.
4. She didn't ___ (bring) her notebook.
5. I have known him ___ five years.
6. They have lived here ___ 2020.
7. I need ___ information about the course. (an / some)
8. There ___ two messages for you. (is / are)
9. Could you ___ me with this? (help / to help)
10. If I finish early, I ___ call you. (will / would)
11. This option is ___ than the other one. (cheap / cheaper)
12. I'm interested ___ learning another language.

B. Correct the sentences

13. She don't understand the question.
14. I am agree with your idea.
15. Where you bought this?
16. He gave me an advice.
17. Please explain me the process.
18. I have seen him yesterday.
19. Although it was late, but we continued.
20. I look forward to hear from you.

C. Transform the message

21. Make this request more polite: “Give me the updated file.”
22. Ask politely where the office is using “Could you tell me…”
23. Join with because: “I stayed home. I had a headache.”
24. Make a negative: “She has finished the task.”
25. Explain the difference: “You mustn't attend” / “You don't have to attend.”

D. Produce your own sentences

26. Write a habit, an action happening now, and a completed past action.
27. Explain an ongoing situation using since or for.
28. Write a real future condition and its likely result.
29. Describe one thing using a relative clause.
30. Write a short response that answers, adds a detail, and asks a follow-up question.

For 26-30, several answers are possible. Check whether your intended time and meaning match the form. A grammatical sentence can still express the wrong meaning for the situation.

23 · Practice set: Bangla to natural English

Translate the meaning. You do not need to copy Bangla word order. Cover page 26 until you have attempted all items.

1. আমি প্রতিদিন একটু করে ইংরেজি অনুশীলন করি।
2. আমি এখন একটা কাজ করছি।
3. আমি গতকাল তাকে ফোন করেছিলাম।
4. আমি তিন বছর ধরে এখানে থাকি।
5. আপনি কি কথাটা আরেকবার বলবেন?
6. আপনি কি আমাকে বিষয়টা বুঝিয়ে বলতে পারেন?
7. আমি আপনার কথার সঙ্গে একমত।
8. আমার কিছু তথ্য দরকার।
9. আজকের মধ্যে কাজটা শেষ করতে হবে।
10. কাল বৃষ্টি হলে আমরা বাসায় থাকব।
11. আমি নিশ্চিত নই, তবে আমার মনে হয় এটা কাজ করবে।
12. আমরা কি মিটিংয়ের সময়টা বদলাতে পারি?
13. আমি ভুল ফাইল পাঠিয়েছি বলে দুঃখিত।
14. আপনি কি বলতে পারেন স্টেশনটা কোথায়?
15. আমি যতদূর বুঝেছি, আমাদের শুক্রবারের মধ্যে জমা দিতে হবে।
16. আপনার কথা বুঝতে পারছি, কিন্তু আমার একটু ভিন্ন মত আছে।
17. আমি পৌঁছালে আপনাকে জানাব।
18. এই শব্দটার মানে কী?
19. কাজটা আমার ধারণার চেয়ে বেশি সময় নিয়েছে।
20. আজ পারব না, তবে কাল সাহায্য করতে পারব।

Improve, don't just translate

After checking, choose five sentences and change the context. Example: “Could you explain the issue to me?” → “Could you explain the schedule to me?” → “Could you explain how this works?”

Reverse retrieval

Look only at the English models later and say the meaning in Bangla. Then cover the English and produce it again. If you remember the exact words but do not understand the meaning, create a new situation before continuing.

A translation trap

বাংলা “আমার ঠান্ডা লাগছে” is naturally “I feel cold” when talking about temperature. “I have a cold” means you have the illness. Context decides the English expression. Do not assume one Bangla word always has one English equivalent.

Speaking challenge: combine items 11, 12, and 20 into a short scheduling conversation. Add a reason and a new time.

24 · Role-play cards and independent speaking

Use each card three times: first with notes, then without notes, then with the complication. Speak both roles if you are alone. Give yourself 30 seconds to prepare, not a fully written script.

Card	Your goal	Complication
1. Introduction	Explain who you are and what you enjoy	The other person asks why you started learning English
2. Shopping	Ask about size, price, and availability	Your preferred item is unavailable
3. Appointment	Agree on a day and time	You must change the original time
4. Directions	Find a place and confirm the route	You did not understand the second instruction
5. Invitation	Invite a friend and make a plan	The friend is busy that day
6. Work update	Explain progress and the next step	A missing detail may delay completion
7. Disagreement	Compare two options politely	The other person prefers the more expensive option
8. Complaint	Explain a problem and request a solution	You need to clarify what is actually wrong
9. Story	Explain a surprising event	The listener asks what happened earlier
10. Interview	Describe a skill with a real example	The interviewer asks what you would improve

Ten one-minute prompts

Describe your morning. Explain a useful app. Recommend a place. Describe someone you admire. Explain how to cook something simple. Tell a story about being late. Compare online and classroom learning. Describe a goal. Explain a recent decision. Talk about a habit you want to change.

Turn one minute into three

Minute 1: give the main answer. Minute 2: add a specific example and a reason. Minute 3: discuss an alternative or answer a follow-up question. Use short pauses; do not fill every pause with “actually” or “basically.”

Self-check after each task

Did I achieve the goal? Was the time reference clear? Did I ask for clarification when needed? Did I use at least three expressions from Book 2 naturally? What one thing will I improve on my next attempt?

A productive correction is specific: “Next time I will use did + base verb in past questions.” “My English is bad” gives you nothing useful to practise.

25 · Answer key: diagnostic and grammar

Diagnostic, page 2

1. goes. Present habit with she.
2. was cooking. An activity in progress when the call happened.
3. since. A starting point, not a duration.
4. doesn't. Negative present simple with he.
5. some. Information is normally uncountable.
6. Did you finish the task?
7. I agree with you.
8. Please explain the problem to me.
9. will.
10. I left early because I felt sick.

Practice set, page 22

1. works. 2. am waiting. 3. met. 4. bring. 5. for. 6. since.
7. some. 8. are. 9. help. 10. will. 11. cheaper. 12. in.
13. She doesn't understand the question.
14. I agree with your idea.
15. Where did you buy this?
16. He gave me some advice / a piece of advice.
17. Please explain the process to me.
18. I saw him yesterday. Finished time normally takes the past simple here.
19. Although it was late, we continued. Or: It was late, but we continued.
20. I look forward to hearing from you. Here to is a preposition, so use -ing.
21. Could you send me the updated file, please?
22. Could you tell me where the office is?
23. I stayed home because I had a headache.
24. She hasn't finished the task.
25. Mustn't = prohibited; don't have to = not required.

Possible answers for 26-30

26. I walk every morning. I'm studying now. I visited my cousin yesterday.
27. I have worked here for two years. / I have worked here since 2024.
28. If the bus is late, I'll take a taxi.
29. The friend who helped me lives nearby.
30. Yes, I enjoy reading. I usually read before bed. What do you like to read?

Different answers can be correct. For open tasks, check both grammatical form and whether the sentence does the requested job. If uncertain, simplify the sentence and compare it with a pattern from the relevant chapter.

26 · Answer key: translation, reading, and writing

Translation models, page 23

1. I practise a little English every day.
2. I'm working on a task right now.
3. I called him/her yesterday.
4. I have lived here for three years.
5. Could you say that again, please?
6. Could you explain it to me?
7. I agree with you.
8. I need some information.
9. I have to finish the task by the end of today.
10. If it rains tomorrow, we'll stay home.
11. I'm not sure, but I think it will work.
12. Could we change the meeting time?
13. I'm sorry I sent the wrong file.
14. Could you tell me where the station is?
15. As far as I understand, we need to submit it by Friday.
16. I see your point, but I have a slightly different view.
17. I'll let you know when I arrive.
18. What does this word mean?
19. The task took longer than I expected.
20. I can't help today, but I can help tomorrow.

Reading answers, page 21

1. She kept changing methods and rarely reused language. 2. Five personal sentences in the morning, recall on the bus, a recorded message in the evening. 3. She described the word or used a simpler sentence. 4. No: she still made mistakes and found unfamiliar conversations difficult. 5. No: she could recall them more easily.

6. Model summary: “Mina replaced an inconsistent study routine with small daily tasks. She practised recalling phrases and speaking even when she could not remember every word. Repeated use helped her communicate familiar ideas with less preparation.”

Writing models, page 19

Reschedule: “Hi Sara, could we move our call to 4 p.m. tomorrow? I have an appointment at the original time. If four isn't convenient, I'm also free at five. Please let me know which works for you.”

Delay: “I'm sorry for the delay. I'm still checking two details, so I won't be able to send the final version this morning. I'll send it by 3 p.m. today. Thank you for your patience.”

Update: “I've finished the first section and started the second. I'm waiting for the latest figures. I'll add them as soon as they arrive and send you an update tomorrow.”

27 · Essential verb forms

Use the base form after do/does/did and modals. Use the past form for a finished past event. Use the past participle after have/has/had and in passive forms.

Base	Past	Past participle	Bangla meaning in common use
be	was/were	been	হওয়া / থাকা
become	became	become	হয়ে ওঠা
begin	began	begun	শুরু করা
break	broke	broken	ভাঙা
bring	brought	brought	নিয়ে আসা
build	built	built	তৈরি করা
buy	bought	bought	কেনা
choose	chose	chosen	বেছে নেওয়া
come	came	come	আসা
do	did	done	করা
drink	drank	drunk	পান করা
eat	ate	eaten	খাওয়া
feel	felt	felt	অনুভব করা
find	found	found	খুঁজে পাওয়া
forget	forgot	forgotten	ভুলে যাওয়া
get	got	got/gotten	পাওয়া / হওয়া
give	gave	given	দেওয়া
go	went	gone	যাওয়া
have	had	had	থাকা / পাওয়া
hear	heard	heard	শুনতে পাওয়া
keep	kept	kept	রাখা
know	knew	known	জানা
leave	left	left	চলে যাওয়া / রেখে যাওয়া
lose	lost	lost	হারানো
make	made	made	তৈরি করা

Examples: “She chose the blue one.” “Have you chosen yet?” “I didn't choose that.” “The window was broken.” Get has several meanings; got is common as a participle in British English, while gotten is common for many senses in American English.

28 · More verb forms and useful extensions

Base	Past	Past participle	Bangla meaning in common use
meet	met	met	দেখা করা
pay	paid	paid	পরিশোধ করা
put	put	put	রাখা
read	read	read	পড়া
run	ran	run	দৌড়ানো / পরিচালনা করা
say	said	said	বলা
see	saw	seen	দেখা
send	sent	sent	পাঠানো
speak	spoke	spoken	কথা বলা
spend	spent	spent	খরচ করা / সময় কাটানো
take	took	taken	নেওয়া
teach	taught	taught	শেখানো
tell	told	told	বলা / জানানো
think	thought	thought	ভাবা
understand	understood	understood	বোঝা
wear	wore	worn	পরা
win	won	won	জেতা
write	wrote	written	লেখা

Read is spelled the same in all three forms. The base sounds like “reed”; the past and participle sound like “red.” Listen to a model to distinguish them.

Four extensions you will hear often

Past perfect: had + participle for an earlier past event. “When I arrived, the meeting had already started.” Use it when the earlier sequence needs to be clear.

Passive: be + participle when the action or receiver matters. “The package was delivered yesterday.” “English is spoken here.” Use active wording when it is clearer: “Sara sent the file.”

Reported speech: “She said she was busy.” “He told me he would call.” Say something; tell someone something. Tense choices depend on context; present can remain present for something still true: “She said she works here.”

Verb + -ing / to: “I enjoy learning”; “I avoid rushing”; “I want to improve”; “I decided to leave.” Learn these with the verb. After a preposition, -ing is common: “I'm interested in learning.” Compare “stop smoking” (quit) with “stop to smoke” (pause another activity in order to smoke).

29 · Check progress fairly

Repeat the baseline at the end of weeks 4, 8, and 12. Keep the original topic for comparison, then try a new topic to check whether your skill transfers.

Speaking and writing rubric

Score each dimension from 0 to 3. This is a self-study tool, not an official proficiency scale.

Dimension	0	1	2	3
Task completion	Main message missing	Partly answers	Completes main task	Completes it with useful detail
Organization	Ideas hard to follow	Frequent jumps	Mostly clear sequence	Clear sequence and connections
Language control	Errors often block meaning	Meaning needs effort	Meaning usually clear	Mostly accurate for this task
Range	Cannot express key ideas	Repeats a few patterns	Uses several patterns	Chooses varied suitable language
Delivery / readability	Hard to follow	Many disruptive pauses or fragments	Generally understandable	Easy to follow at a comfortable pace

Maximum: 15. For speech, assess delivery; for writing, assess readability. A higher score on one familiar task is evidence of progress on that task, not proof of an overall level.

Final performance tasks

1. Speak for two minutes about your routine, a recent experience, and a future plan.
2. Hold a three-minute role-play involving a misunderstanding and a solution.
3. Listen to a changed version of one script twice; report its main point and key details.
4. Write a 120-word request or update with a clear action and deadline.
5. Pick 20 random Book 2 entries. Use each in a new sentence without looking at the example.

A practical readiness check

You are ready for harder material when you can complete these tasks with understandable meaning, ask for clarification, and recover after forgetting a word. If you frequently stop or lose the main message, identify the specific weakness and repeat the relevant pages.

Progress log: Date | Task | Score | One strength | One recurring issue | Next practice. Compare recordings a few weeks apart; daily changes may be difficult to notice.

30 · Keep going: your next learning cycle

When you get stuck

“I know words but cannot speak.” Practise whole phrases and repeat the same speaking task three times. Use simpler words while keeping the message moving.

“I understand reading but not speech.” Use short audio sections, hide the transcript first, then compare. Focus on contractions, word boundaries, and key details.

“I make the same grammar mistakes.” Pick one pattern, write five true examples, and deliberately use it in tomorrow's recording. Review the error log weekly.

“I translate everything.” Reuse familiar situations until the response becomes easier: greetings, explaining your day, making requests. Move from Bangla cue → English phrase to situation → English response.

“I forget vocabulary.” Reduce the number of new entries and increase retrieval. Recognition is easier than recall; cover the answer and actually produce it.

The next four weeks

Week A: repeat difficult grammar and record everyday stories. Week B: practise appointments, requests, and explanations with unexpected changes. Week C: give opinions and summarize short messages. Week D: repeat the final tasks with new topics and compare results.

Keep the same routine, but add personally relevant language. For each new expression, record meaning, a common word partner, one true sentence, and one situation where you will use it.

What these books cover

A practical foundation for everyday and common workplace communication: core grammar, conversation management, pronunciation practice, listening scripts, reading, writing, frequent verbs, and 240 vocabulary targets with Bangla meanings and examples.

No finite handbook contains every English word or prepares you for every accent, profession, or advanced situation. Treat these books as your core course. As your needs grow, add language from actual conversations and topics you care about. You can start and complete this course without purchasing another textbook.

Start today

Do the diagnostic. Record a one-minute introduction. Learn the first five vocabulary entries. Create five true sentences. Tomorrow, try to recall them before opening the book.

শেষ কথা: ভুল হওয়া স্বাভাবিক। প্রতিদিন এমন কিছু বলুন বা লিখুন যা আপনার নিজের জীবনের সঙ্গে সম্পর্কিত। একই ভাষা বারবার ব্যবহার করলেই তা সহজ হতে শুরু করে।

Editorial note: This course uses mostly British spelling, such as practise (verb), colour, and centre. American equivalents are also correct. The assessment and schedules are practical course guidance, not standardized test results.
